

Ms. Diana Potts is committed to achieving viable environmental solutions for a cleaner and greener tomorrow. An expert in government contracting as well as environmental and sustainability initiatives within the Federal Government, Ms. Potts works with industry and educational institutions to help develop business opportunities and provide training.

Ms. Potts has been involved in both an advisory and leadership capacity for numerous organizations. She played a major role as an advisor with the Louisiana Department of Environmental Quality during the Hurricane Katrina and Rita cleanup operations. Ms. Potts was also one of twenty top environmental leaders chosen to join a Green Sustainability panel at the Pentagon, where she helped write the Department of Defense's Sustainability Plan. In 2011, Ms. Potts was chosen as an industry advisor to the newly formed Army Energy Initiatives Task Force.

With over thirty years of experience, Ms. Potts has advised more than five thousand clients, identifying opportunities and providing assistance in the procurement of government contracts. She founded her own environmental product company, G and E Advisors, and has gained a reputation as one of the foremost experts on bio-based products and issues especially concerning remediation and disaster response clean up.

Ms. Potts continues to be in demand as a speaker and consultant. The Government of China invited her to speak on environmental issues and participate in resolving them prior to the Olympics. She is also a regular lecturer for the North Carolina Military Business Center, and has guest-lectured at Methodist University Boot Camp for Entrepreneurs, Fayetteville State University, and the Solar Center at North Carolina State University.

Ms Potts has delivered custom training, presentations, and webinars for national and regional events. Some of the associations she has worked with include the General Services Administration and the National Air Force Environmental Training Symposium.

Ms. Potts is a successful business woman and entrepreneur. She was an Honorary Chairperson of the Business Advisory Council in Washington, DC and has served as Vice President on the Board of Braxton- Bragg AUSA, the largest chapter in the world. Ms. Potts has received numerous awards, including the Congressional Medal of Distinction for Environmental Efforts, the Congressional Order of Merit, and the 2009 National Leadership Award. In 2009, she was awarded Business Woman of the Year for North Carolina and was honored at a dinner, with President George W. Bush making a special guest appearance.

Ms. Potts's expertise and experience can give your company the competitive edge it needs in the government marketplace. For more information, email dianapotts@gandeadvisor.com or call 910-354-8037. Diana may also be contacted via:
